POLICING CHINESE POLITICS

A HISTORY

Michael Dutton
Beginning with the bloody communist purges of the Jiangxi era of the late 1920s and early 1930s and moving forward to the wild excesses of the Cultural Revolution, Policing Chinese Politics explores the question of revolutionary violence and the political passion that propels it. "Who are our enemies, who are our friends, that is a question germane to the revolution," wrote Mao Zedong in 1926. Michael Dutton shows just how powerful this one line was to become. It would establish the binary division of life in revolutionary China and lead to both passionate commitment and revolutionary excess. The political history of revolutionary China, he argues, is largely framed by the attempts of Mao and the Party to harness these passions.

The economic reform period that followed Mao Zedong’s rule contained a hint as to how the magic spell of political faith and commitment could be broken, but the cost of such disenchantment was considerable. This detailed, empirical tale of Chinese socialist policing is, therefore, more than simply a police story. It is a parable that offers a cogent analysis of Chinese politics generally while radically redrafting our understanding of what politics is all about. Breaking away from the traditional elite modes of political analysis that focus on personalities, factions, and betrayals, and from "rational" accounts of politics and government, Dutton provides a highly original understanding of the far-reaching consequences of acts of faith and commitment in the realm of politics.

Praise

"[A] comprehensively-documented book that pushes us to reconsider the basis of politics in twentieth-century China." — Lisa Fischler, Canadian Journal of History

"[A]s a history of Chinese policing this book is a remarkable achievement and should be required reading on the subject for many years." — Gregor Benton, Pacific Affairs

"Dutton’s history of Chinese law enforcement sets a new standard for research in this area. It is the most detailed and well-researched piece of scholarship to date on the subject." — William Hurst, Asian Affairs

"Evaluating this important book will be the work of years: it makes a unique structuralist contribution in a field too often dominated by court politics and political psychology. It clearly explains the urgent priority that current Chinese leaders give to deradicalized politics, and to technocratic and market based problem solving. But its biopolitical themes give the book a significance well beyond the study of Chinese politics. To cite but one example, many themes resonate powerfully with the politics and policing of the current “war on terror.” Anyone concerned..."

---

BUY

Paperback

Cloth

Availability: In stock

Price: $30.95

ADD TO CART

Buy the e-book:
Michael Dutton is a reader in political science at the University of Melbourne. He also has an appointment as a professor of politics at Goldsmiths College, University of London. He is the author of Policing and Punishment in China: From Patriarchy to “The People” and The Crisis of Marxism in China and the editor of Streetlife China.

Preface vii

Introduction: A Theoretical Explanation 1

1. Friends and Enemies: The War Within 23

2. From Class to Nation: Limiting the Excess in Yan’an 71

3. The Government of Struggle: Institutions of the Binary 133

4. The Years That Burned 197

Concluding Reflections 301

Glossary 317

Notes 331

References 375

Index 395

Sales/Territorial Rights: World
Winner, 2007 Joseph Levinson Book Prize, China and Inner Asia Council of the Association for Asian Studies

Paper ISBN: 978-0-8223-3489-7 / Cloth ISBN: 978-0-8223-3477-4

Publicity material
- Bk Cover Image Full

Related Items

Also Viewed

Intersectionality as Critical Social Theory

!Intersectionality as Critical Social Theory

TSQ: Transgender Studies Quarterly

!TSQ: Transgender Studies Quarterly