Ecstatic Nation: Confidence, Crisis, and Compromise, 1848-1877

By Wineapple, Brenda.

Harper. 1 Cloth(s), 2013. hard. Book Condition: New. Broadly surveying the most tumultuous decades in America's history, the author of the National Book Critics Circle Award finalist White Heat vividly brings to life the secession crisis, the Civil War, Reconstruction, and the settlement of the west. Incorporating compelling quotations and stories that illustrate the nation's larger conflicts, Brenda Wineapple's history features such unforgettable figures as P.T. Barnum, John Brown, Walt Whitman, Jefferson Davis, George Custer, Frederick Douglass, and Henry Adams. "A splendidly lyrical portrait of the decades that encompass both the Civil War and Reconstruction. Beautifully written, artfully constructed, and passionately argued on every page, Ecstatic Nation stands forth as a model of narrative history." Ron Chernow 723.

Reviews

This book is definitely worth acquiring. I have gone through and so i am certain that i will likely to read through again again in the future. Its been printed in an exceptionally basic way in fact it is only after i finished reading this publication in which actually altered me, change the way in my opinion.

Dazzling in scope, Ecstatic Nation illuminates one of the most dramatic and momentous chapters in America's past, when the country dreamed big, craved new lands and new freedom, and was bitterly divided over it. Brenda Wineapple talked about her book, Ecstatic Nation: Confidence, Crisis, and Compromise, 1848-1877, in which she presents a history of the United States in the mid-nineteenth century. IT -- that's probably a figure that is not finished being revised. And of course there was a period of reconstruction that occurred in the south, and at the same time there was the settlement of the west, augmented by the goal rush in 1848 and completed with the slow and painful and very disturbing removal of the indians from that particular part of the country. Just a few things that I concerned myself with for the last year. In "Ecstatic Nation: Confidence, Crisis, and Compromise, 1848-1877," her splendid new history of the Civil War period, Brenda Wineapple takes us on a different ride. Think the Monaco Grand Prix: zigzagging, sometimes precipitous, with hairpin turns that slow you to a crawl followed by straightaways where you reach 200. Lincoln is there, of course, along with all the other major players, but the usual dichotomies are replaced by a kaleidoscope of outsize personalities, conflicting visions and unforeseen events. In other words, Wineapple gives us history as it feels in real time: full of plans t
