Perspective on South Dakota Women in Fine and Traditional Arts

Leda Cempellin, South Dakota State University

Document Type
Article

Publication Date
2015

Format
application/pdf

Keywords
South Dakota, women, art, apprentice, nature and culture, postmodern, Lakota, Sioux, folk art, women and art, kinship, traditions, pioneer, Marghab, star quilting

Abstract
The steady increase of women's contribution to the visual arts in South Dakota, especially in recent decades, makes it impossible to celebrate all the individual accomplishments in the space of a chapter. Therefore, the following sections will limit the discourse to a choice of a few significant patterns of contribution to the arts and crafts in South Dakota. To begin, an historical overview of Lakota and European immigrant arts and influence are discussed, including women's key influences on arts education in the state. Then, the expansion of traditional arts through NEA apprenticeship programming is described through the work of current master-apprentice partnerships. The final section highlights works by contemporary South Dakota women artists blurring the boundaries between fine arts and crafts, both within the context of the Governor’s biennials and beyond state boundaries.

Pages
12

Publisher
South Dakota Agricultural Heritage Museum

Type
text

Language
en

Rights
Copyright 2015 South Dakota Agricultural Heritage Museum

Comments

Recommended Citation
Interest in women managers and entrepreneurs, often from an interdisciplinary perspective, combining, for instance fields such as sociology, psychology, management, and organizational studies. Given that we are living in a time of tremendous change (as regards technology, economy, culture and society), with rapid changes in societal structures, the focus on women in work and management is more pressing than ever. Participants will have an enjoyable and productive day.

South Dakota Fine Arts Standards. https://goo.gl/hPsl3X. Create. Interpreting the short animated film, Between Bears, by Scott Simpson. Interpret intent and meaning in artistic work. 5.MA.Re.8.1. Determine and compare personal and group interpretations of a variety of media artworks, considering their intention and context. Teacher should then facilitate a whole group sharing of the variety of perspectives. Students will individually write a brief, 3-part paper that addresses:

1. Their own initial interpretation.
2. Incorporating different forms of fine and performing arts to examine contemporary social, cultural or global issues. Watch the Larissa FastHorse “I Am Theatre” interview. How might a person's individual.
3. South Dakota Art Museum, Brookings. Dakota Discovery Museum, Mitchell. After giving Dakota Woman to Case and the Middle Border Museum, Dunn promised to donate 40 more paintings if a proper facility could be built. When he arrived in Mitchell in the late 1940s, with a trunk full of paintings, he was disappointed to find no building. He studied intensely with Howe during his four years there and earned a degree in fine arts. He later ran the summer institute and was a full-time professional artist in Vermillion from 1988 until his death in 1999. “It breaks out of that traditional perception of native art as being very primitive, and that it has to have a man on a horse with his hair flowing in the breeze. There’s a much more contemporary feel to it.” South Dakota Art Museum, Brookings. South Dakota Symphony Orchestra, Sioux Falls. Visual Arts Center at the Washington Pavilion, Sioux Falls. Powwows are celebrations of Native American culture and heritage and often include traditional dress, dancing, music, arts and crafts, singing and other cultural activities. Powwows are held throughout the year, especially in summer. Browse a list of powwows in South Dakota to learn more. The Buffalo Roundup & Arts Festival at Custer State Park allows visitors to watch a roundup of around 1,300 buffalo. After the roundup, visitors can see arts and crafts vendors, enjoy pancakes and other food, see traditional Native American entertainment and enjoy other fun activities over two days in Sep.